Manuel Torres, Vice President, Motorola Government & Public Safety, EMEA

Manuel Torres is vice president, Motorola Government & Public Safety, EMEA. He has overall responsibility for the private radio networks business in Europe and the Middle East and is instrumental in driving Motorola’s market growth. This role involves management of key accounts in both the private and public sector across the region.

Manuel began his career at Motorola over 15 years ago joining Motorola LMPS as a system integrator. Since then, Manuel has been the lead manager in the Radio Networks Solutions Group (RNSG) in Portugal and in 1997 was promoted to the sales manager for Iberia, working across Spain and Portugal. He has been a key figure in the development of the commercial government industrial solutions sector (CGISS) for Motorola across southern Europe leading to his overall management of the EMEA region today.

Manuel has an MBA from the Universidad de Navarra in business administration and management and has also had sales and technical work experience with both Alcatel and Siemens.
