Europe in Movement
The idea of Movin’ Europe is a political and cultural range of actions that are to take place throughout six months during the summer of 2007, and shall get the whole of Europe moving.

Movin’ Europe perceives itself as a network of a multitude of movements and encounters that serve the purpose of exchange about, and the dealing with, social relations. The idea addresses people who want to develop and to realise their visions of a life in dignity available for everybody with each other. With these movements and encounters, possibilities shall be given to tie new networks of friendships and solidarity, and to strengthen the ones that already exist.

We want to make visible and experienceable that there is another Europe other than the „Fortress Europe“. The Fortress Europe that exploits human beings and nature all around the world and lets thousands of people die at its borders or in its prisons.

Another Europe other than the Europe from above; the Europe of domination as it presents itself at the G8-summit in Heiligendamm, for example. An other Europe than the one of isolated people who let themselves set powerless against each other.

We want to gain control over our own lives, as well as to build up what supports life, whereas at the same time we want to offer resistance against everything that destroys the resources of life.

We desire to move in the direction of a Europe in which all resources, i.e. food, accommodation, education, health services, and everything that is necessary to live, are accessible for everybody.

We desire a life in solidarity and in autonomous organisation that is rooted in mutual recognition of each other, in dignity, and in compassion.

We want to offer alternatives to the fear and helplessness that are created socially. And we want to discuss, to name, and to put these alternatives in action throughout the whole events/actions. Movin’ Europe does not exclusively want to overcome the borders between the countries, but, above all, between the people themselves.

To turn this idea into reality we want to encourage you to take initiatives or to support the following initiatives:

1. Regional Initiatives
If you’d like to have guests staying with you from Western Europe, or perhaps you can instigate something yourselves and then inform us about it in order to find fellow travellers.

In this respect tours of artists of all kinds who would fit into our concept, or generally, trips by individuals who have something to present, for instance films, theatre, exhibitions, book stalls, etc.

3. Other Initiatives
An example would be the idea of a Consulta, a Europe-wide survey, which are to be carried out at the locations of the meetings and en route between them. The questions will be devised as open as possible. The idea being to obtain a basis for discussion for exchange and reflection upon the current situation of those questioned.

We consider our task as being on the one hand to ensure the promotion of the idea itself, and on the other hand for the exchange of information between the individual initiatives. To this end we are initiating an internet presence and we will be publishing information flyers at regular intervals (2 months) presenting the current state of affairs.
